

The « human » Being

Expressing and transmitting the love and knowledge that I am becomes more and more difficult for me in the face of so many resistances, struggles, denials, ignorances, nonsense, mental and emotional barriers that constantly interfere with this transmission.

I often feel like withdrawing so much as I find this human race limited, stuck in the mind and cut off from feeling. The deeper I go or "descend" into the impersonal dimension, the more I distance myself from the human being and what he cherishes; only the being interests me. The human being must intelligently get rid of the "human" whose consequences are visible every day around us and in the world.

Being is the opposite of the human as it is manifested today, so how can we make humans understand this ? Dying to oneself, to this human, was for me the most fundamental and most demanding change of my life ; one cannot duplicate such a thing !

And yet I have nothing better to do than to tirelessly strive to bring those who are ready to "cross over" to the "other side" like a midwife. I am in a good position to guide and enlighten those who do not see this transformation as madness but as the only way out of the true madness of humans, and they are few and far between !

Against all odds I continue ; in reality, I am moved by this ; there is no decision, ambition, or will on my part. I am pushed to do what I do and so much the better if it helps some and so much the worse for the others who are not ready or who pass by (the majority).

My life no longer belongs to me, I act according to my feelings, according to what intelligence dictates to me without being separated from it.

Dying to oneself goes against our whole society, our conditioning, our culture and our beliefs. One must be driven by a deep intention to discover, in one's perception and conscience, the unified movement of life and death, beyond the erroneous concepts of which we are all prisoners and slaves.

To die to oneself is to prepare for one's physical death and to free oneself from ignorance of this world and of oneself. Never forget: even if it is not your concern, death concerns us all. It is the culminating moment of our lives. We must prepare ourselves intelligently for it and it starts now !

What you will discover beyond death is what you should have, or should have accomplished here on earth, but it will be too late... this time...
